Dear Regina Academies,

The season of Advent invites us to contemplate the mystery of the Incarnation -- the Word made flesh. The sacramental union of spiritual and material reality is at the heart of Catholic life. The inherent unity of all that is True, Good and Beautiful resounds through our Tradition, and is celebrated in Catholic schools like the Regina Academies whose classical curriculum and fidelity to the Magisterium offer living testimony to the joy that stems from embracing the fullness of our Faith.

This Advent season I am pleased to extend my blessing to the Regina Academies, dedicated to the Queen of Heaven. With their outstanding faculty, committed parents and devoted supporters, these schools are forming hundreds of students in the Faith. May they continue to be a vibrant apostolate across the Archdiocese of Philadelphia.

Sincerely yours in Christ,

+
Most Reverend Charles J. Chaput, O.F.M. Cap.
Archbishop of Philadelphia
